Goering Predicts Nazi Blow In West

WARNS ARMIES WAIT HITLER'S DRIVE ORDER

Full Power of Nazi Forces Ready to Strike, Says Air Force Chief.

RECALLS FATE OF POLES

German Planes Stage Mass Raid on Scapa Flow; Damage Slight, Say British.

(By International News Service)

BERLIN—A prediction of a quick German blow in the west and unshaken confidence that Germany will win the war to regain her position as the "most powerful empire in the world" were voiced by Field Marshal Wilhelm Goering today in a nationwide radio broadcast.

"A decisive blow must be struck in the west," Goering declared. "For this blow the fuehrer has mobilized all our resources.

"Our enemies, trying to prevent the reconstruction of Germany, frivolously started the war to destroy us.

"Fate, acting through us, has given the answer to that wickedness. They shall learn now what it means to attack the German people."

Goering broadcast to a meeting of the Hitler Air Youth in Berlin. His address was relayed to youth meetings, schools and workshops throughout the country.

Pointing to the speed with which Germany's forces vanquished Poland, Goering declared:

"Part of our enemies were smashed in the unbelievably short time of 18 days by powerful German blows.

"Our other enemies may note that we have not become weaker, but stronger. We will give the same demonstration when the time is ripe and show that Germany has decided to end the war.

"Germany's rear and flanks are free and the iron block of our defense forces faces the French and British on the west.

"There the decision must fall.

"All our forces have been called up for this. If everyone fulfills his duty, the decision can bring only a German victory."

Goering appealed to the youth of Germany to contribute everything in their power to "make the greatest fight in history end in a glorious victory."

"As surely as we won our domestic fight for power," he continued, "we will win our struggle against outside enemies.

"Once Germany was the most powerful empire in the whole world. It shall become so again."

Susquehanna Falling, Ohio River Flood Fears Fading

(By United Press)

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. — The Susquehanna river gradually subsided today as federal and state agencies began the task of rehabilitation in the stricken area.

Estimates of loss necessarily could be only guess work, but 12 were known dead, several persons still were missing and damage was placed as high as $10,000,000.

Early today the water level had lowered to 26.35 compared with a high mark of 31.6.

With subsidence of the waters, the Red Cross, the American Legion and various state and federal agencies swung into action. The Legion raised $55,000 and received tons of food for shipment to the stricken area.

The Red Cross placed 1,200 WPA workers on the task of cleaning streets and carrying debris from dwellings.

Virtual martial law still prevailed in many of the flooded communities, however.

Leaving emergency shelters in churches, schools and armories, residents began filing back to put their houses in order.

OHIO NEAR CREST

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Its rise slowed almost to snail's pace, the Ohio river neared anticipated crests well below flood stage today, with scant fear felt among boatmen for showers that might come.

The stream, which rose to a "flash flood" in Pittsburgh earlier in the week, was falling between Wheeling, W. Va., and Marietta, O., and was stationary below Parkersburg, W. Va.

From dam 29, above Portsmouth, O., to dam 37 at Fernbank, 10 miles west of Cincinnati, its rate of rise was diminished by a third to a half that recorded yesterday.

Joseph Pulitzer, president of the Pulitzer Publishing company, publishers of the Post-Dispatch, appeared in court to answer for the company.

CHARGES LIBEL

Ousted Waterworks Chief Sues News-Journal for $25,000.

James E. Warrack, former Mansfield waterworks department superintendent, had filed a $25,000 libel suit in common pleas court today against The News-Journal and Robert E. Rogers, its city hall reporter.

The action, an outgrowth of Warrack's dismissal by Mayor William J. Locke March 9, charges that The News-Journal's story of the dismissal on that date libeled Warrack and "impaired and injured his chance of procuring any employment for which he is suited." Rogers was named as the reporter who wrote the story.

Represented by an Ashland attorney, Atty. C. W. Chorpening, Warrack further charges that the story tended to "charge the plaintiff with immoral conduct and to bring him into public disgrace, shame, and scandal in the community where he lives."

Warrack, who was appointed waterworks superintendent when Mayor Locke took office Jan. 1, was dismissed by the mayor for "conduct unbecoming of a department head." The mayor said the action followed a series of complaints concerning Warrack's behavior on the job.

IMPROVEMENT OF FIVE CITY STREETS OK'D

Council Passes Legislation to Pave West Fourth Portion of Route 30-N.

TEAR UP CAR LINE RAILS

Season's Program Includes Sloan, Lind and Bernard Avenues, Poplar Street.

Council's passage of preliminary legislation last night opened the way for improvement of five city streets, including the resurfacing of West Fourth street.

With the construction of water lines of WPA already under way on U. S. route 30-N, council's action set the stage for paving the roadway from North Diamond street to a point near Ausdale avenue.

The entire project, which has been estimated at $100,000 will be shared on a 50-50 costs basis by the state, the city and property owners.

In its present status, the amount of the expense property owners will share is undetermined. It will be based on frontage with the city meeting the cost of the intersections.

Preliminary legislation provides for the payment of improvement costs in five annual installments, and the issuance of assessment bonds in anticipation of the collection of assessments.

Additional legislation was approved authorizing Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton to dispose of the old street car rails which will be taken up along with the present brick.

The four other street improvements include the grading and graveling of four streets in southwest part of the city at an estimated cost of $9,000.

Recommended by the street committee for the improvements are Poplar street, from Ohio street to Sloan avenue; Sloan avenue, from Poplar street to Bartley avenue; Lind avenue, from Ohio street to Albert street; and Barnard avenue, from Marion to Euclid avenue.

Albert street, from Lind avenue to Vennum avenue, had been

Hearing Delayed On Charges Filed In Butler Scrap

Hearing of assault and battery charges against three Butler school officials and teachers, scheduled for tonight before Mayor Russell Strong of Butler, had been postponed today until April 17.

The continuance was granted by the mayor at the request of L. L. Miller, Butler baker, who filed the charges following an alleged attack on him at the home of Walter Wareham, a school board member, last Wednesday night.

Miller said he wanted "more time to get our evidence together." Atty. Joseph A. Bayer of Mansfield, representing Miller, said it was possible that he would ask for an "outside judge" to hear the case.

Supt. Willard Weekley of Butler schools, and Robert Burgett, high school coach, were cited for assault and battery and Wareham for assult following the alleged attack on Miller. They denied the accusations when arraigned before Mayor Strong last week.

Miller said he was assaulted when he went to Wareham's home to seek a conference with the school officials to "straighten out gossip that had been going around."

See Third Term Endorsement In Primary Result

Democrats Give President Lead of 3 to 1 Over Garner; New York Candidate Has Large Margin Over Vandenberg.

(By Associated Press)

MILWAUKEE—Wisconsin Democrats endorsed a third term for President Roosevelt although incomplete returns from Tuesday's primary gave no assurance today that he would capture all of the state's 24 delegates to the Democratic national convention.

With more than half of the vote counted, the president was leading Vice-President John N. Garner in the presidential preference balloting by a ratio of nearly 3 to 1.

Meanwhile, the Republicans were rolling up a large lead for delegates pledged to vote for the nomination of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York. Dewey candidates for delegate-at-large were polling approximately two votes to each one for candidates committed to Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan.

Neither Dewey nor Vandenberg was entered in the presidential preference primary, which is advisory and not at all binding on the delegates.

Returns from 1,844 precincts out of 3,011 gave:

Roosevelt 168,210, Garner 56,806

A factional fight among the New Dealers provided a chance for the Garnerites to elect their delegates, but returns from 1,336 precincts showed their front-running candidates for delegate-at-large trailing the top four who are pledged to the president. Two of the latter ran on a slate which was brought out in opposition to that backed by National Committeeman Charles E. Broughton.

The vote in 1,336 precincts: Charles Hammersley, state conference endorsed Roosevelt candidate, 34,496; Francis McGovern, his running mate, 34,469; William B. Rubin, Roosevelt-Farley candidate, 34,175, and Charles Henney, his running mate, 33,857.

Inasmuch as the state is entitled to four delegates-at-large, the leading Garner candidate, John N. Callahan, was not out of the running. His vote in 1,336 precincts was 33,394, less than 500 below that of Henney.

In the Republican contest for delegate-at-large, 1,324 precincts gave:

The balloting indicated that Wisconsin, which gave Roosevelt

WOMEN DECIDE CLEAN-UP FIGHT

Pendergast Machine Ousted By Aroused Kansas City Voters Tuesday.

KANSAS CITY—(AP) — Aroused clean-up forces, led by 7,500 actively campaigning women, tore Kansas City's scandal-gripped city hall away from Tom Pendergast's machine yesterday.

The victory, achieved by a fusion of independent Democrats, Republicans and civic leaders, was almost as decisive as any the erstwhile Democratic boss ever achieved for his puppets.

Fusionists elected John B. Gage, Democratic lawyer, mayor by 20,000 votes and swept seven of their eight councilmanic candidates and both municipal judges into office with him.

Pendergast, at his peak, elected U. S. senators, governors, state supreme court judges and legislators. He controlled the city hall 14 years.

After April 17, when Mayor Gage and his cohorts move into the multi-million dollar city hall—built with Pendergast concrete—the machine will have only a few county offices left.

The concerted campaign to oust Pendergastism really got its big push from the 1936 presidential election frauds. More than 200 election officials and politicians, both Democrats and Republicans, were indicted. Not one was acquitted.

During the machine regime, a $20,000,000 a year gambling racket and a $12,000,000 a year narcotics

SANG FOR VOTES

Political Youngster Wins Milwaukee Election.

MILWAUKEE—(AP)—Daniel W. Hoan, Socialist who served as Milwaukee's mayor for 24 years, was retired from office in yesterday's municipal election, defeated by a political youngster who sang for votes.

The mayor-elect, who belongs to no party but is a member of a score of civic, fraternal, religious and musical organizations, is 32-year-old Carl F. Zeidler, former assistant city attorney.

Virtually complete unofficial returns gave Zeidler the mayor's post by more than 11,000 votes.

Suspension of Michigan Prosecutor Invalid.

LANSING, Mich. — (U.P.) — The Michigan supreme court ruled today that Governor Dickinson's suspension of Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea of Wayne county, a defendant in two vice conspiracy indictments, was invalid.

Governor Dickinson had ordered suspension of McCrea on request of the special Wayne county grand jury investigating collusion between public officials and gamblers in Detroit.

McCrea refused to accept the suspension, contending the governor was without authority to remove him from office prior to an ouster hearing which is to be held upon conclusion of the examination of McCrea and 34 others now being held in Detroit.

Lightning Strikes Two Homes, Downpour Floods Streets Here

April brought its first severe electrical storm and heavy showers to Mansfield about 1 p. m. today when lightning struck two west side homes and rain flooded streets in the north end of the city.

Firemen were called to the homes of J. S. Wainwright, 700 Park avenue west, and H. L. Lanehart, 202 Bennett street, where lightning caused slight damage.

A fuse was blown out at the Wainwright home and the electric range was slightly damaged. The charge ignited the attic at the Lanehart residence, but firemen extinguished the blaze before it spread to upstairs rooms.

Water was up to the running boards of cars at the county highway garage on North Main street and streets in other sections of the city were flooded as the storm swept over the city from the southwest.

Warmer weather and more thundershowers were forecast for tonight by the weatherman. Showers and cooler weather are on the weather menu for Thursday.

The mercury climbed all the way to 55 degrees at noon today, but dropped sharply during the storm. Lowest mercury reading this morning was 43 degrees.

Summer readings were common yesterday in states west of Ohio while Cincinnati had the state's highest of the season—80 degrees. There was no indication of more cold weather immediately.

Civic Music Group Launches Drive for Record Membership

With a goal of "a capacity house and a waiting list" workers in the annual membership campaign of the Civic Music Association started out this morning to reach that goal before 9 p. m. Saturday.

Mrs. Mercedes Walker, representative of the Artists Service of NBC, New York City, was the principal speaker last night at the annual workers' dinner, held at the John Simpson Junior high cafeteria. She urged workers to strive for a membership which will fill "every seat in Senior high school auditorium, and leave a waiting list of a hundred."

There were about 150 workers at the attractively arranged dinner. Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud, president of the Civic Music Association, presided and introduced a number of guests and officers of the organization.

Mrs. Walker said that the Civic Music plan, which is about 19 years old, has made it possible for cities and towns over the United States to have artists that once

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I started up from my father's side.

"Dicky?" I queried frantically. "There is more than one man in that attic. Can't you hear? And only Dicky and Harry to handle them. And that gas. Won't it get our men, too?"

Lillian put out her hand and pulled me down to my seat again.

"Steady, girl!" she said. "The gas that will come down the stairs won't be enough to affect our boys seriously, especially as the windows are open in the hall, and they can slam the door shut again. And the broken windows in the attic will soon have the air cleared upstairs. It's the marauders who will get the full force of it, enough to disable them temporarily, but not enough to injure them. There's only one danger, and that is of the Chief's getting a whiff of it. He's only just out of a sick bed, and this door's going to be opened only over my dead body. You didn't notice in the excitement, but I managed to stuff the keyhole and put a rug across the door at the floor. Luckily, there are no cracks at the side, and as the window in here is open, I reckon you're safe while we keep the door shut."

"I reckon I am," my father retorted dryly, but he had no opportunity for protest because Dicky's voice sounded through the door.

"There are two of these babies, Dad, and you can bet there are no more. These are almost choked to death now. Where will we take them for your inspection? Please don't open that door. This hall isn't exactly full of tear gas, but there are enough whiffs of it to give you a cough or two."

"Take them down to the room we generally use for those gentry, and, after they are securely hobbled, give them first aid. Then let them rest until you think they're in shape to answer a few questions. There's no hurry. The longer they have to ponder their plight, the better."

"How about bedding them down for the night and tackling them in the morning?" Harry Underwood asked from the hall outside.

"But with a guard—an adequate one—over them," Dicky interpolated quickly with emphasis, and my spirits lifted with the suggestion. I had an exaggerated dread of the men who had been hidden in the attic.

My father considered a minute.

"I think that is a very good suggestion," he said. "Later, when the gas is out, we can search the attic and find out just what they've been doing. And I can use a little time in figuring out just how those men contrived to get entrance to this guarded house."

"Does it strike you?" Harry Underwood asked, "that the guards may need eyeglasses?"

My father permitted himself a slow grin at the gibe.

"Possibly," he answered, then added cryptically: "But there are other angles which must be considered."

His next words were distinctly ironical.

"Will you tell me," he queried, "how long you expect to keep me prisoner here?"

THEATERS

Irish Romance.

A story of New York's finest is told in "Three Cheers For The Irish" which the Madison offers today and tomorrow. Thomas Mitchell plays an old policeman who is forced to retire because of his age. His three daughters, played by Priscilla Lane, Virginia Grey and Irene Hervey, coax him into running for alderman, and then mess up his chances. Dennis Morgan, a young policeman, marries one of the girls and another takes money from a gambler to finance the campaign. "Women Without Names" is the second attraction on the bill.

Sympathizes With Role.

Henry Fonda, who always does a good job of creating a character, in a rather unobtrusive way, has his most important role to date, with the exception of "Young Mr. Lincoln," as Tom Joad in "Grapes of Wrath." Fonda is thoroughly in sympathy with the character, for while he has never been in prison, he has been "kicked around" from one job to another, getting little money and considerable abuse in most of them. Fonda worked his way through the University of Minnesota, doing all sorts of odd jobs. The Steinbeck novel has made a stirring picture. It remains at the Ohio through Thursday.

Modern Romantic Comedy.

"Eternally Yours" is one of the best of last season's crop of romantic comedies and it gave David Niven his greatest break in pictures—just before he left Hollywood to don the English uniform. As the fascinating Arturo, who performs marvelous feats of magic, he marries Loretta Young. Despite their love for each other, there isn't much to hold them together since she wants a home and he prefers the night clubs. A second marriage for her is given a hilarious twist when the three of them meet at a house party. The picture is at the Ritz, along with "British Intelligence."

Music and Drama.

The Majestic bill through Thursday is a combination of musical film and law enforcement drama. "The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle," with Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire is the story of two of America's most famous entertainers and interwoven are the song hits of their day, which was before the World war. "I Am The Law" places Edward G. Robinson in the role of a fearless prosecuting attorney who starts out to clean up a metropolitan city and smashes a nation-wide crime and vice ring.

Family Tragedy.

"My Son Is Guilty" is the dramatic and tragic situation of a law enforcement officer whose son refuses to go straight even after a prison sentence. His plan to make easy money in one big sweep, brings about the death of his friend's mother and he himself, barely escapes killing his own father. Harry Carey and Bruce Cabot have the father and son roles. "Two Thoroughbreds" is the story of an unhappy boy and a colt. These two features make up the Park bill.

FOOLING YOUR MATE

LEADING a small card, which will look to your partner like a fourth-best when it is not, is likely to fool him completely regarding the existing situation and cause him to make some play which will hand the contract to the declarer on a silver platter. Of course, it may fool the declarer, too. But that is not so important, for he knows what are all the cards that are out against him, and has doubt only as to their location. Your partner, however, doesn't know for sure whether some particular missing card is held by his own side or the enemy.

West led the diamond 10 to the K and A. The heart 5 was returned to the A, then West led the club 2, North coming in with the A. A spade was led to East's A, and South expected him now to take the high club, but he didn't. Having read the deuce lead as a fourth-best, East had South now figured as blank in the suit. So he returned the heart 3.

Then the declarer, the famous Captain Alfred M. Gruenther, now stationed at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Texas, went to work. The noted Vanderbilt Cup tournament director overtook West's heart J with the K, and then ran his remaining six spades, discarding carefully. As the last was played he also had the diamond 6 and club Q in his own hand, the heart 10 and diamond Q-8 in the dummy. West couldn't afford to throw his heart J and make dummy's 10 good, so tossed a diamond from the 9-2, whereupon the captain discarded the heart 10 from dummy. East now was cooked. If he discarded the club K, the Q would be good, so he broke his diamond J-7, which built the diamonds of the dummy into two trick takers. The double squeeze was all made possible by West's lead of the club 2, which East couldn't help mis-reading.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, April 4.

A fairly lively day is indicated by the lunar transits. It may be a day in which matters may run in routine grooves, with trivialities and petty oppositions upsetting the equanimity or straining the happy course of events. These may be perplexing and promote the danger of a small loss, financially or in the matter of prestige or standing.

Those whose birthday it is may have a rather routine sort of year, with little transpiring out of customary grooves. While there may be trifling irritations, conflict or petty loss, financially or in friendship or social standing, it is not a time of portentious events.

A child born on this day may have a rather easy-going nature, with not too exciting ambitions, and should have a fairly uneventful career.

LARGER SELECTIONS AND GREATER VALUES IN DIAMONDS
AT ROGERS
ASK THESE 4 QUESTIONS BEFORE YOU BUY ANY DIAMOND
1 Is it of standard, modern cut? Be sure the diamond is of good weight and standard brilliance.
2 IS IT PERFECT? Imperfections reduce the value of a diamond. Be sure your selection is as perfect as possible for the price you can afford to pay.
3 WHAT COLOR IS IT? Diamond value decreases from five to eight percent with an inferior grade of color.
4 HOW MUCH DOES IT WEIGH? This is an important factor that must be considered in relation to cut, color and degree of perfection.

EYES BIGGER THAN STOMACH

Odd Colors Fail to Appeal In Dinner Dishes.

HOUSTON, Tex.—Your eyes are bigger than your stomach—as far as appetite is concerned—C. A. Patterson told a restaurant men's meeting.

Patterson, editor of the American Restaurant magazine, Chicago, said:

"Restaurant operators make a tremendous mistake in serving milk in red glasses, having rainbow-colored plates or serving oddly colored foods. All these things have a bad effect on eye appeal."

Several damage claims and petitions presented to council last night were sent to committees for consideration and reports at early meetings.

Among the claims were those of Walter Wagner, 80 Altamont avenue, for $29.34 for repairs to his car which he said was damaged by backfill in a ditch on March 23 on West First street; C. F. Creedman, 200 Bennet street, $6.70 for replacement of a tire and tube he claims was damaged when his car hit a hole on Marion avenue; Sophie Korodi, Akron, $258.50 basement repairs on property at 358 West Sixth street, and Gus Doran, 1059 Park avenue west, $13.34 for furnace repairs. All were referred to council's claims committee.

Petition for permission to construct a sanitary sewer on Reform street, filed by Joseph Micholski, 293 Reform street, went to the sewer committee.

The street committee will consider the request of property owners on Wood street from Cline avenue to Ruth avenue to change the line of the sidewalks on the street and for grading and paving the roadway.

The petition of Philip Wilging, 616 Marion avenue, for the construction of a water line on Sloan avenue to serve his properties was give to the water committee.

Council also authorized settlement of a $30 claim for damages caused by sewer water backing up in the basement, to Edith Matthes, 32 Rowland avenue.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton was authorized to dispose of several junk motors at the North Main street waterworks pumping station for not less than $180. The funds will go into the city's general fund.

Powder Detonation Blamed for Ohio Mine Disaster

NEAR CLOSE OF INQUIRY INTO BLAST

Company Official Unable to Determine What Ignited Powder Charge.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—Testimony of the state's investigation of the cause of an explosion that killed 72 men in the Willow Grove Coal mine on March 16 strongly indicated today that it was a powder detonation.

Testimony of state mine inspectors was to be concluded at the state mining division's hearing today. Mining company officials testified yesterday.

Jerome Watson, a miner for 40 years who served nine years as chief of the Ohio Division of Mines and who is now general inspector for the Hanna Coal company, said he believed that a powder explosion wrecked the mine.

Official Testifies.

Questioned by Nelson Hovey, assistant director of industrial relations, Watson declined to express an opinion on what touched off the powder.

"I have no opinion I could state as to what could have ignited it," Watson said.

R. V. Clay, of Kent, O., general manager of the Hanna company; Charles Nailler, acting superintendent, and John M. Davis, safety engineer of the company, also testified before George A. Strain, state director of industrial relations.

Safety Changes.

Hovey questioned Watson concerning the findings of the federal bureau of mines and asked him if the bureau had made any recommendations to the mine company, prior to the explosion, to make changes it found desirable after the disaster. Watson said that no specific recommendations had been made but that the U. S. bureau had made general recommendations which had not been followed by the company.

Watson said that the company used black powder instead of "permissable" powder, approved by the U. S. bureau, because it produced a larger sized and better quality coal. He admitted the "permissible" powder was safer.

He also said the company did not use machines approved by the U. S. bureau but he was unable to say why. The mining machines designated as "permissible" have guarded flames which decrease the danger of explosions.

Study Madison, Boulevards Fire Contracts

Up and Down THE STREET

City council was not without its sound effects while engaged in the topic of fire protection for Madison township and South Boulevards last night. While the discussion was at its height, company No. 1 at the city building received an alarm and roared past the council chambers with sirens screaming. The noise was so great that all discussion was momentarily halted.

Place cards at the Civic Music association dinner last night were not only most unusual, but they probably were the most expensive place cards ever used in Mansfield. Mrs. W. E. Wygant, who arranged the dinner, prevailed upon her husband, Dr. Wygant, to make X-ray plates for each guest. The plates showed a silver trumpet and banner, and on the banner was printed the guest's name. The plates were made in the usual manner after Dr. Wygant had made a miniature silver trumpet, and then X-rayed it. These were at the places of officers and speakers last night.

Mimeographed announcements done in blue and pink and showing a baby broadcasting from a crib, was the novel idea used by a former Mansfield school teacher and her husband in announcing the birth of a daughter March 27. The announcements were sent to friends here by Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Lewis of Durham, N. C. Mrs. Lewis was the former Miss Margurite Garber, daughter of Mrs. Sylvia Garber of Bellville, and formerly taught at John Simpson junior high school here. The radio theme represented the better speech program conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis over the Duke university radio station every Thursday. Lewis is professor of speech at the university.

Mrs. C. W. Noel, Davis road, was tremendously surprised yesterday at the meeting of her sewing club when she was the recipient of a "stork shower." The favors were in blue and pink and she was presented with a tray of gift wrapped packages. When she opened them she found a catnip mouse, and all sorts of trinkets for kittens to play with. The word had been passed around that the Noel Persian cat had given birth to quintuplets this week.

URGE REPUBLICAN LEADERS TO SUPPORT NEFFNER CANDIDACY

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Approximately 6,000 Republican party leaders were expected in Columbus today for a GOP rally, the opening of the May primary campaign.

They were to be urged to nominate as the party's candidate for the secretary of state's post, George M. Neffner, of New Vienna, who was appointed to fill out the unexpired term of the late Earl Griffith by Governor Bricker yesteray.

Neffner's name would have to be written in as the name of Edward J. Hummel, of Cincinnati, who failed to gain party support, will be the only one appearing on the ballot. Such a move is unprecedented in Ohio politics, and some doubt was expressed whether a write-in campaign could be successful.

At a meeting of the Republican state central and executive committee yesterday, approval was given to Neffner's candidacy. The newly appointed secretary of state has been an editor and statistician in that office for the last 12 years.

At the request of Griffith's widow, one of Neffner's first official acts was to re-certify the primary ballot with Griffith's name left off.

Indorsements also were voted by the committee to Treasurer of State Don H. Ebright, Lieutenant Governor Paul M. Herbert, Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert and Congressman-at-Large George H. Bender and L. L. Marshall.

In addition, the candidacy of former Attorney General Bettman of Cincinnati, unopposed candidate for the GOP nomination to the Jan. 2 supreme court term, was approved. Already indorsed are Governor Bricker for re-election and U. S. Senator Robert A. Taft for president.

WITHDRAWALS ASKED

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—The newspaper, Ohio Democracy, organ of the Democratic party in Ohio, in a leading editorial today expressed the hope that some of the party's eight candidates for the nomination for governor would withdraw from the contest.

"We hope that by April 4th, final day for withdrawals, the field may be drastically reduced, so that the nomination will mean something and be worth something in November," the paper said.

"Ohio democracy is interested in the primary only to the extent that we believe no candidate should be encouraged to run for governor unless he can reasonably hope to obtain a majority of the party vote."

COUNCIL GROUP DRAFTS PACTS FOR TWO AREAS

Special Committee Weighing Appeal for Reduction in Protection Rates.

A special three-member council committee was charged today with negotiating seperate contracts with Madison township and South Boulevard village officials for fire protection for their communities.

The committee was named last night by Council President Howard G. Miller after Madison township trustees and representatives of the village appeared before council.

It consists of Fred Miller, chairman of the finance committee; Second Ward Councilman C. N. Shultz and Harry Emmons, councilman-at-large.

The contract, which provided Madison township with fire protection by the city fire department for $2,000 annually, expired Sunday, but city officials have agreed to furnish protection until new contracts are signed with the township and village officials. South Boulevards is a part of Madison township.

City Solicitor Marion D. Ward ruled last week that a seperate contract would have to be made with South Boulevard officials because it had been incorporated as a village since the last contract was entered into with Madison township trustees two years ago.

Trustees appearing before council last night asked the city for renewal of their contract but requested that consideration be given to several changes in the terms including a reduction in the annual rates.

John Selby, spokesman for the group, asked that the city assure the township of better protection, citing two fires in the township during the past two years that resulted in considerable loss because apparatus was being used within the city limits at the time of the fire.

The contract which expired does not require the fire department to answer a call in the township when any motor apparatus is engaged in the city.

R. K. Clark, representing South Boulevards, reminded council not to "overlook" the village in the matter of fire protection and said officials were willing to negotiate a seperate contract with the city.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Imaginary excursion into the thoughts of a very young man I never have met:

I'm eight years old, and my name's Dion, but you can just call me Skipper or Skip. That's what the fellas at military school call me, and that's what Mom (she's Barbara Stanwyck, the acting lady) calls me since I asked her to. So does Pop—you know, Bob Taylor.

We live in Beverly Hills when they're working in pictures, but other times we get out to the ranches—Mom and Pop each have one, but Mom's going to sell hers. 'S all right with me, so long as they both keep the horses.

This Bob is all right. I'm the fella that made him, a spinach-eater, ha, ha! Mom says when she met Bob he was a meat-and-potato guy. Then they got married, and there I was, eating at the table with them, and what could Bob do? See how it works? Bob couldn't say spinach was rabbit food in front of me, because if he did I could quote it right back at Mom. So Bob took up spinach gamely, even other vegetables. He still balks at salads, but not in front of me.

Mom has ideas about me. Guess she read a book. Was a time when she and Bob loaded me down with presents. Then Mom read a book called "My Son, My Son," and she said I had too many things, and so we sent most of 'em away. Now it's a rule I get just three presents on my birthday. They've even got me earning that present Bob is going to give me. It's a dilly of a wrist watch, and it's in a drawer upstairs, and I get to look at it now and then—but I don't get it till I earn it. Good behavior. Well, I'm game. Funny thing is, Mom is denying Mom when she doesn't load me down with presents. She never had many when she was a kid named Ruby Stevens in Brooklyn, and she wants me to have everything, but she's smart enough to leave things to work for.

Mom knows a lot of girls, movie fans, are nuts about her Bob, but she doesn't mind. Mom says when she goes places with Bob and the girls all squeal she knows the girls aren't squealing for her (because she's been around enough to know they don't), so she just stands aside, and everybody has a good time. Guess she knows where Bob's heart is. . . .

Mom was going to do a picture called "Night of January 16," but Mr. Ameche wouldn't do it, and then Mom wouldn't do it because Mitchell Leisen couldn't wait and direct it. Mom says if an actress has confidence in a director, that's all that matters. Thinks Mitch Leisen (who did "Remember the Night") is headed for the top.

But this fella Coons is all wet, if he thinks looking into my mind would give up thoughts like these. All that stuff is over my head, and I'm concerned with important matters. There's a fella at school I'm going to fix good — I mean well—when I get a coupla years older. And say, I was looking in the mirror this morning, and my hair's getting darker all the time. Tow hair is sissy, I always say. I've been begging Mom to dye it black, the way they do for pictures, but she says no. Guess there was something in the book about that, too.

Vets Look Good

Harder and Allen Impressive In Debut Against New York Club.

WAYCROSS, Ga.—(UP)—The Cleveland Indians were quite happy today about their 10 to 3 loss to the New York Giants yesterday.

That seems like a strange attitude for a pennant-ambitious ball club to assume after such a decisive defeat but the tribal satisfaction originated from the spring debuts of two veteran pitchers, Johnny Allen and Mel Harder, against the Giants.

Allen looked like his almost unbeatable self of three seasons ago when he throttled the Giants with three hits and no runs in three innings and did not issue a base on balls.

Harder was pounded hard for eight hits and seven runs in three innings but he gave an affirmative answer to his good physical condition about which the Indian bosses were worried. Mel lacked a curve ball and control yesterday but no one worried about that.

"I was tickled pink with the way he looked," chortled Coach Johnny Bassler, who has been around too long to form cockeyed first impressions very often. "Give him one or two more starts and he'll show you he is ready."

The Giants collected 14 hits in all off Harder, Allen and Johnny Humphries while Hy Vandenberg and Bill Lohrman held Cleveland to seven safeties.

Manager Oscar Vitt of Cleveland said that Oscar Grimes, utility infielder, was recovered from a knee operation and ready to break into the lineup any day. Lou Boudreau, injured shortstop, will be ready in another week.

Thompson Will Try To Halt Streak.

STATESVILLE, N. C. —(U.P.)— The Cincinnati Reds found themselves down, four games to one, against the Boston Red Sox today with eight games to play in the spring series between the two clubs.

Manager Bill McKechnie called Gene Thompson to the mound to halt the Red Sox today after the American leaguers crawled all over Bucky Walters, McKechnie's ace, in winning yesterday, 6 to 3.

The Sox took advantage of 10 hits off Walters and some careless Redleg fielding to tally all their runs off the National league's top hurler in the six innings he warked.

Lloyd (Whitey) Moore replaced Walters in the sixth inning and held the Sox scoreless on three hits although he was wild. Whitey whizzed a third strike past Jimmy Foxx to get out of one jam and a double play eased him past another tight spot.

The Reds connected for 11 hits including three by Lonnie Frey and two each by Vince DiMaggio and Mike McCormick, candidates for the third Redleg outfielding job. Frey also sparkled afield, handling 10 chances without an error and removing any doubt that he again will start the season as the regular second baseman.

Woody Rich was to hurl for Boston against Thompson today.

Red Streaks Battle For Track Berths

Mansfield high athletes battle for berths on the track squad this afternoon in final try-outs before the Red Streaks meet Newark at Stadium field Saturday.

Although the Mansfield tracksters have been reporting for practice for some weeks now, bad weather has been preventing Coach Harry Mehock from holding the sessions. Most of the practice has been held in the gymnasium.

Last Saturday the Streaks were entered in the Tri-State interscholastic meet at the field house of the University of Pittsburgh Fred Atwater, Tiger hurdler, came home fourth in the fifty yard high hurdle event for the only point.

Champions To Defend Team Title

Detroit Goebels Bid For Top Billing Again This Year At Bowling Congress.

DETROIT—(AP)—Another championship goes on the block tonight at the American Bowling congress when the Detroit Goebel team attempts to defend its five-man title.

The state fair coliseum has been sold out for a week in anticipation of the Goebel five's appearance. The team rolled 3,151 last year at Cleveland under the colors of the Fife Electric company and is considered one of the strongest contenders in the present tourney.

Three weeks ago, in a successful defense of their Michigan match game title, the Goebels shot a phenomenal 3,559, one of the highest scores ever posted in recognized competition. The Schamberger five of Chicago is the present tournament leader with a 2,967 count.

The 1939 singles and doubles champions joined the ranks of ex-champions in yesterday's rolling, which failed to produce a change among the leaders. Jim Danek, Forest Park, Ill., who won with 730 at Cleveland, totaled only 497 on games of 182, 162 and 153 to finish far down the list.

Philip Icuss and Murray Fowler, Steubenville O., defending doubles titlists, fared no better. They mustered only 1,184 compared with their 1,405 total last year. Fowler had 618, Icuss 576.

ABC Leader

John Taylor of Upper Darby, Pa., has something to smile about, for now he leads the American Bowling Congress singles event with a 730 total, good enough to win many of the tourneys. The firing is going on in Detroit.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Teddy Yarosz of Pittsburgh, former world middleweight champion, today had signed again for a fight with Jimmy Reeves, unbeaten Cleveland Negro.

Reeves and Larosz were signed for April 15 after the Cleveland boxing commission decided to take no action against the former champion for failing to appear last week in a scheduled brawl with Reeves. Yarosz remained on the west coast, where he was beaten by Turkey Thompson.

Argentine Champion Tabbed High In Meet

Pose Expected to Give Good Account of Himself In Annual Masters Invitation.

By BILL BONI

AUGUSTA, Ga.—(AP)—Having had one 18-hole look and several talks with the man, since he arrived here, we hereby are tabbing Martin Pose of the Argentine to give a good account of himself in the annual Masters invitation golf tournament which starts tomorrow.

Since we predicted that Ben Hogan would go ahead and win several first prizes after he copped the blue ribbon in the North-South championship, we also consider ourselves considerable of a "tabber." But there is more to it than that.

There is, more importantly, Martin Pose himself — a cool, self-possessed customer, 29 years old, about 145 pounds, dark-haired, compactly built, and a hitter long and straight enough to outdistance Byron Nelson consistently off the tees.

If it's not too much of a play on words, we'd say that Pose (you seem to pronounce it Poe-Zay) has poise. He was quite expressive in his enthusiasm for the six-under-par 66. Nelson shot in his company yesterday, but it was obvious that underneath he was devoting a good 99 and 44-1000 per cent of his attention to studying a course he'd never seen before.

He gave that impression all the way around—of a man who might be in strange territory at the moment, but who knew his business.

After having spent 19 days at sea and 20 hours on a train, the Argentine and French open champion went around yesterday in 73, only one over par. He had three bogeys in the first ten holes, but finished off with six pars and two birdies.

AUGUSTA, Ga.—(INS)—Whether Bobby Jones can overcome a crick in his back and the effects of 10 years' more or less desultory practice was the prime question today as golfers assembled for the 7th annual masters' tournament, opening tomorrow.

It looked as though Jones was in top shape yesterday as he toured the course with Charles Yates, Horton Smith, and national amateur champion Bud Ward in a practice round. Jones carded a 66, six strokes under par. He got three birdies on the first five holes.

Jones retired from golf in 1930 after he had scored the only "grand slam" on record by winning the amateur and open championships in both Britain and America in one year. Since, his chief competition has been in the masters' tournament, and he has finished among the first 24 only twice.

BALL PLAYERS MEET

Members of the former DeLuxe Cabs softball team will meet at 8 p. m. Thursday at the Corner Lunch, it was announced today by John Villella. It is important that all players be present, Villella said.

Train Sights On AAU Meet

Michigan Makes Bid for 1st At Columbia University.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The University of Michigan team that dominated the NCAA swimming championships last week-end has its sight trained just as surely now on the national AAU meet here this week-end.

To prove it, the Wolverine 200-yard relay team broke the pool record at Columbia university last night in the school's annual water carnival. Gus Sharemet, John Gillis, Tom Williams and Charles Barber swam churned back and forth in the short pool to complete the distance in 1:35.2.

* * *

Al Patnik and Earl Clark of Ohio State and Jack Keating of Columbia, also pointing toward the AAU meet, gave a skillful exhibition of diving, but no scoring was done.

NOT BOY ANYMORE BUT STILL HE'S A 'WONDER'

CHICAGO—(AP)—The "boy wonder" of billiards 34 years ago is no longer a boy but he's still a wonder.

Willie Hoppe, now 52 years old and gray-haired, clinched the world's three cushion title last night, defeating defending champion Welker Cochran, 50 to 43 in 46 innings, for his 16th consecutive victory in the current tournament without a defeat.

Don Scott Laid Up With Infection

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Don Scott, Ohio State's all-conference quarterback, was laid up in University hospital today with a blood infection. His condition was reported as "good."

The illness probably will force the former Canton McKinley High school star to abandon varsity baseball this spring. He is not likely to report for spring football, however, because he needs the spare time to overcome classroom difficulties to become eligible for the gridiron next fall.

BUMP RUINS GAME

DETROIT —(AP)— A bump against his foot robbed Charles McAnespie of Lancaster, O., of a perfect game in the American Bowling Congress singles. He rolled eight strikes, glanced into the gutter, hit ten for a spare and three more strikes for 270. His other scores were 214 and 201.

'ANGEL' TRIUMPHS

MONTREAL — Maurice (The Angel) Tillet, 276 France, defeated Ernie Dusek, 232, Omaha, Neb., straight falls.

Training Camp Notes

(By Associated Press)

EL PASO, Tex.—That long awaited event, the season's first test of Dizzy Dean's pitching arm, is slated for next Monday at Fort Smith, Ark., Manager Gabby Hartnett of the Chicago Cubs has decided. In the meantime he assigned Claude Passeau to face Bill Dietrich today as the Cubs and White Sox met for the last time before they put on their pre-season series in Chicago.

STATESVILLE, N. C. — The Boston Red Sox and Cincinnati Reds resumed their series here today with the American leaguers seeking their third straight victory. They'll have to do it without Dom DiMaggio, though, because he is being rested from a charley horse. The Reds also are having outfield trouble, Manager Bill McKechnie still experimenting with his apparently hopeless left field material.

LAKELAND, Fla. The Detroit Tigers, who broke camp today and headed for Gadsden, Ala., to take on the Brooklyn Dodgers, may not be a better team this season but they'll be a noisier one. With Birdie Tebbetts behind the plate every day and Dick Bartel holding forth at shortstop they're about as rowdy a crew as the staid American League has to show.

WAYCROSS, Ga.—Oscar Vitt of the Cleveland Indians boasts that his team will start one of the youngest infields in the majors this year. Shortstop Lou Boudreau is 22, Second Baseman Ray Mack and Third Sacker Ken Keltner are both 23 while Hal Trosky at first is all of 27.

* * *

OKLAHOMA CITY—The New York Yankees are showing the minor league towns why they are the world champions. They made three fielding lapses against Dallas yesterday and came back with three double plays. In addition Charley Keller hit a homer with one on and Atley Donald combined with Spud Chandler for five-hit shutout hurling.

Get Ready for Speed Classic

Speedsters Start Practice For Indianapolis Race.

INDIANAPOLIS —(AP)— Practice for the annual 500-mile automobile race on the Indianapolis motor speedway is off to its earliest start since post-war days.

Russell Snowberger of Detroit drove his four-cylinder front-drive car 100 miles around the two-and-a-half-mile brick-and-asphalt track yesterday, doing one lap at 115 miles an hour.

* * *

T. E. (Pop) Myers, vice president and general manager of the Speedway Corporation, said it was the earliest practice spin in 20 years. But he predicted warm weather would bring out more drivers soon.

Snowberger, who hit an estimated 152 miles an hour on the straighaways, forecast "speed to burn" for the 28 running of the yearly motor classic next Memorial day.

"The track feels lightning fast, although it's pretty dry," he said. "I expect that it will take from 121 to 133 miles an hour to qualify."

Last year the slowest of the 33 cars in the race qualified with a 10-mile run at 116.527 miles an hour. The late Floyd Roberts made the best speed in a race when he won the 1938 event at 117.200 miles an hour.

Fostoria Club Seeks Manager

Ohio State League Team Without Affiliation.

FOSTORIA—(U.P.)—Officials of the Fostoria Baseball club, of the Ohio State league, today hung out a "help wanted" sign for a manager and ball players.

With it was an announcement that the Fostoria club will operate without a major league affiliation during the 1940 season after the St. Louis Cards failed to renew their four-year-old working agreement. The club, representing the smallest of the cities in organized baseball, was unsuccessful in attempts to make another major league tie-up.

Without a manager and players, Fostoria is in the market for an ex-major leaguer or some other "old head" who can manage a team after whipping it together in short order. Meanwhile, applications from rookies and from former minor leaguers, who are free agents, will be welcomed by the Fostoria management.

THROUGH UNLESS MAJOR LEAGUE OFFER POPS UP

ROCHESTER, N. Y. — (AP) — Walter J. (Rabbit) Maranville, mighty mite of baseball since 1911, admitted definitely yesterday that he's through with the organized sport—through that is, unless a major league offer, now unexpected, pops up.

Maranville, who Wednesday announced he had quit as manager of the Tupper Lake club of the New York State league, revealed he has accepted a position with an oil company's baseball faculty which conducts schools and tryouts throughout the east for aspiring players.

CLAIMING RULE GOES IN EFFECT APRIL 20TH

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Ohio's new claiming rule will go into effect for the first time on April 20 with the opening of the Beulah park meet, it was announced today. The rule provides that a person filing a claim must start a horse in the race in which the claim has been made or in a previous race at the meeting.

COMPLETES STAFF

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The American Association's 1940 umpiring staff was complete today with appointment of James B. McCutchen of Powder Springs, Ga., formerly of the Southern Association and South Atlantic league.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK (AP)—Well, pull up a chair and let's get going . . . The Harry Thomas diving probe soon may be a dead pigeon here, just as it is in Chicago. . . . Arch Ward, sports editor of the Chicago Tribune, which printed the original charges, was called in for questioning by District Attorney Dewey's office, but wouldn't talk . . . you may never hear of the thing again. . . . During his month stay in the Red Sox camp, Tom Yawkey's telephone bill was $360.

* * *

Di Maggio, Dickey and Keller are the boys the small towns holler for as the Yanks barnstorm through the southwest. . . . Lou Ambers tunes up for Lew Jenkins against Wally Hally in Denver, April 17.

GREAT SCOTT!

If this isn't the height of something or other! . . . In Oakland one day last week Max Baer (who stayed exactly four rounds with Louis) insisted on demonstrating to Arturo Godoy (who lasted 15) just how Arturo should have fought Joe.

Brietz

Exactly 27 wrestlers claim the heavyweight title, but the National Wrestling association has decided Ray Steele is their guy. . . . If you'll pardon us for mentioning it . . . that report that Duke will drop minor sports was a bloomer. . . . What's this about the Detroit Lions going to toss Howie Weiss, Johnny Pingel and Dwight Tully, three star backs, on the trading block? . . . The Reds traveled 1,000 miles out of their way to play in Birmingham where they have bought a new farm.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Jimmy Wood, Brooklyn Eagle: "Well, Governor Lehman has signed the pari-mutuel enabling act and it's all over but the touting."

Joe Louis begins work May 1 on a series of fight movie shorts to be called "The Sign of the Zombies." . . . They say Roy Cullenbine, Brooklyn's $25,000 beauty, is inclined to sulk a bit when things don't click on all six.

Attention, coaches: The jobs at Washington U. (St. Louis) and Loyola (Los Angeles) are still wide open. . . . On successive days this week Red Burman and Arturo Godoy tramped in to the A.P. offices to publicly challenge Joe Louis. . . . (Joe didn't even look up).

ONE-MINUTE INTERVIEW

Charlie Gehringer: "I have an idea I can go through another season (his 15th) with the Tigers . . . if I hadn't thought the job was going to be steady I wouldn't have taken it in the first place."

Sons of Former Players on Squad

DELAWARE —(U.P.)— Sons of three former major league players are members of the Ohio Wesleyan University baseball squad this spring.

Peckinpaugh is a son of Roger Peckinpaugh, former shortstop for Washington and other teams and later manager of Cleveland. Betzel's father, Albert (Bruno) played second base in the majors and now manages minor league clubs. Rickey is a son of Frank Rickey, former big league catcher and now scout for the St. Louis Cardinals.

New American League Rule Irks McCarthy

TAMPA, Fla. — (AP) — The new American league rule which forbids the championship club to obtain players from other teams in the league except at the waiver price has Joe McCarthy of the New York Yankees a little worried, an official of another club says.

* * *

"If Boston does beat them this year, McCarthy will feel that this rule had something to do with it," he said. "Joe doesn't say so in as many words, but he thinks it's a bad rule and could have a damaging effect on some players.

"Certainly it reduces their incentive to hustle, because they know they are sure of their jobs. Every regular on the club and most of the substitutes absolutely know they won't be traded, and there isn't much chance of the Yankees selling any of them."

"Personally, I don't think any of the Yankees are the type to take advantage of the situation, but you never can tell. One of the things that has made Joe a great manager is the knowledge his players have that Joe won't hesitate an instant to trade them if they don't play to suit him, no matter how good they are."

At least one player, first baseman Babe Dahlgren, certainly still is with the Yankees because of the new rule, which was put across by President Clark Griffith of Washington at the winter meeting. The Yanks practically had closed a deal for George McQuinn of the St. Louis Browns when the gates were barred.

The National league refused such a rule, with the result that the Cincinnati Reds were able to add some strength. They traded Les Scarsella, first baseman they didn't need, to Boston for Jim Turner, veteran pitcher who might win 15 games for them. And Scarsella has a regular job with the Bees.

* * *

Too, all the Reds know they have to battle to keep their job, even if they had played on a championship outfit. Possibly this made some of them hustle just a little harder than they might have if they had been in the enviable position of the Yankee stars.

JOINS HOCKEY LOOP

DETROIT — (U.P.) — The Toledo Babcocks, an independent hockey team, was voted a franchise in the Michigan-Ontario hockey league by the board of governors last night. Entry of Toledo would make the M-O a six-club loop composed of Detroit, Pontiac, Windsor, Stratford and London, Ont., and the Ohio sextet.

Horse, Jockey Are Through

Seabiscuit and Pollard Quit Racing Wars Together.

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — Seabiscuit and "Red" Pollard have quit the racing wars together.

Pollard told friends last night that when he rode the 'Biscuit to victory March 2 in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap it was his last appearance in the saddle.

They were a great team. Together they whipped the best thoroughbreds on the American turf. Their victory in the $100,000 special made Seabiscuit the champion money winner of turfdom.

* * *

Seabiscuit has retired to the stud after a brilliant comeback from injuries that appeared to have ended his career. Pollard has quit after recovery from a bone-smashing crackup that almost cost him his life. He probably will become stable agent for his employer, C. S. Howard, and later branch out into training horses on his own.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—I have never attempted to assume the glamor of a war correspondent but I certainly don't need a whip-cord tunic or leather puttees to tell you that the European conflict will slowly strangle the competitive flair which is a necessary qualification of every truly great athlete.

* * *

I say that because it is obvious to me as to any uncalloused observer that the great athlete no longer has all his incentive. The war has taken it away.

* * *

The hostilities have influenced almost every sport. Track and field, tennis, golf and polo have been struck the most deadening blows. Boxing and racing have been affected, too, but less directly. Even ice-hockey and two or three brands of international football have been affected. The war's part in all this is simple. It has removed the international contest from sports.

McLemore

Take track and field for instance. The other night I watched Greg Rice decisively whip Taisto Maki and Don Lash in new world record time for the three-mile run. Rice's performance was an excellent one. I cheered it and the other 10,000 persons in Madison Square Garden cheered it. But so what? The normal goal at which Rice should point is the Olympiad. But this year there will be no Olympic games. Russia took care of that.

The same applies to Al Blozis, the young Georgetown sophomore who heaved the 16, the 12 and the eight-pound shots farther than any man had put them before. Under normal circumstances Blozis would be sailing off to Helsinki to carry the stars and stripes against the world. Instead, he can do nothing but go back to Georgetown. Anything but the Olympics is an anti-climax.

It is the same everywhere. No tennis player can hope for more than the singles title at Forest Hills. Wimbledon is miles and years away and there will be no coronation ceremony for 1940 because there won't be an international tournament worthy of the name. Nor will there be a challenge for the Wightman cup.

Golf has lost the Walker cup and the Ryder cup. A dozen ambitious young men have been grooving their strokes for months hoping that the untoward will happen so that they may get a chance at the British on the links.

Foreign boxers are at the front. Foreign horses are being shipped across the Atlantic. The ice-hockey leagues may collapse whenever Canada calls her players to the colors. The international polo series will not be held next year and it is doubtful if Britain will challenge for the America cup for another decade.

* * *

The effect of these cancellations won't be felt this year. Nor maybe next year. But by 1942 you will notice it. You will notice it in times and distances and volleys and putts.

why this 40% Small Grain Whisky HAS RICHER BODY AND FLAVOR

By using larger percentages of Rye and Barley malt in the mash, the flavor of the Corn can not bury that of the other grains. It takes less "K. Taylor" for a really full flavored highball or mixed drink and it will "tickle your taster" when taken "straight."

WELL, WE GOT THROUGH THE DAY ALL RIGHT!— I HOPE NOTHING HAPPENS TO THE COLONEL TONIGHT!
I DON'T BELIEVE HE REALIZES HOW DANGEROUS HIS SITUATION CERTAINLY IS!— HE OUGHT TO HAVE SOME SORT OF —BODYGUARD!

JUDGE PUFFLE By Gene Ahern

YOU HEARD WHAT THAT RAILROAD WORKER SAID — A TANK CAR OF OIL WAS BUSTED IN A FREIGHT WRECK AND THE OIL FLOWED DOWN IN THIS SWAMP!— — YOU FATHEAD.— NOW WE'RE OUT $800!— WHY DIDN'T YOU INVESTIGATE FIRST?—
LISTEN, YOU DOPE,— YOU WERE THE ONE WHO RUSHED THE DEAL!— I TOLD YOU I WAS OUT DRIVING AND SAW A SWAMP FULL OF OIL, AND YOU HAD ME JUMP THE GUN IN A RUSH TO BUY IT!—
INVESTIGATE FIRST?— I SUPPOSE, WISE GUY, IF YOU FOUND GOLD IN THE ROCKIES, YOU'D RUN AROUND TO SEE IF A DENTIST LOST IT!
AND THE JUDGE IS LOOKING FORWARD TO HIS "PENALTIES"!

TRADERS NIBBLE AT TOP ISSUES IN MIXED MART

Better-Known Industrials and Rails Get Attention; Gains Outweigh Losses.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Traders nibbled at some of the better-known industrials and rails in a mixed stock market today.

Fractional gains outweighed the losses near the second hour but a decisive trend was lacking.

Bonds were uneven and narrow. Leading commodities were inclined a little higher.

Mounting indications of a new rising tide in industrial activity were closely observed by traders interested in expanding their holdings.

On top of the rise in steel production came the first advance in five weeks in the Associated Press index of electric power production. The index climmbed 1.1 points to 123.9, a full point above the best mark of 1939 and 8.5 points above a year ago.

Also encouraging was the report of the national industrial conference board that an accumulation of inventories apparently has been arrested, indicating a resumption of buying orders.

NAMED TO POST

BUCYRUS—Harold Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Cook, junior at Miami university, was recently elected vice president of the Miami chapter of Phi Delta Theta.

Robert Quay, son of County Treasurer M. W. Quay is secretary of the same organization.

Cook was also named alternate to the national convention of the fraternity to be held in Minneapolis Aug. 27-30.

BULLITT OFF —SO'S PROBE

Hull Won't Hold Ambassador for 'White Book' Questioning.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—State department approval for Ambassador William C. Bullitt's departure for France by plane today put the quietus today on a congressional move to question him about purported statements in the German white book.

As a result of Secretary Hull's refusal to keep Bullitt here, few members of the senate foreign relations committee believed any action would be taken on an investigation proposal of Senator Reynolds (D., N. C.)

Besides having the ambassador testify, Reynolds also wanted to have Undersecretary of State Welles summoned in hopes of learning the results of his recent fact-finding mission abroad for President Roosevelt. This, too, was considered unlikely.

Army Staff Chief Warns Congress of War Danger

NATION NEEDS MORE TROOPS IN EMERGENCY

Marshall Urges Increase in War Department Budget for Next Year.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, warned congress today that "if Europe blazes in the late spring or summer, we must put our house in order before the sparks reach the western hemisphere."

The time has come, Marshall told a house appropriations subcommittee handling the war department's supply bill for 1941, to "face the facts....of the existing crisis abroad."

Add to Troops.

"Any major developments there should be paralleled by added precautions in this country," he declared. "If the situation grows more desperate, we should add to the seasoned number of troops in the regular army and the national guard.

"These should be but temporary measures, but they should be taken definitely, step by step, to prepare ourselves against the possibility of chaotic world conditions."

Marshall said that the army's "immediate objective" is complete equipment of the 227,000 regulars and the 235,000 national guardsmen. The army was boosted 17,000 men and the national guard increased 45,000 as part of the limited national emergency declared by President Roosevelt last September. The 1941 budget is $39,000,000 short of providing critical items for this initial protective force, he said.

Army Objective.

The army's "great objective"—even more important than more soldiers — marshall said, is the ultimate procurement of $240,000,000 worth of ammunition, rifles, artillery, tanks and other equipment for the "protective mobilization plan" force of about 1,000,000 men which could be put in the field within four months after outbreak of war.

"The war department believes tha the procurement of this material should take precedence over desired increases in personnal," he said. After this equipment has been provided, he said that the department would like an increase of 15,000 men in the regular army.

"It would carry the regular establishment to 242,000, the minimum of seasoned soldiers that we think should be maintained by this country until it is apparent that the world is assuredly embarked on a period of prolonged peace," he said. "In other words, we should maintain such a force until world conditions have stabilized."

Other salient points of his testimony included:

The army needs 70,770 of the new semi-automatic .30 caliber Garand rifles to bring its strength to the 240,559 considered necessary. A total of 169,789 have been delivered or contracted for delivery by June, 1942.

Frank J. Starzel, chief of bureau of the Associated Press in Ohio, tells Rotary club members of the difficult task of bringing war news from Europe to American newspaper readers.

Describes Censorship Forms Used by Europe In War Time

A graphic description of the problems of American Press Association correspondents covering the war in Europe was presented to members of the Rotary club and their guests Tuesday noon by Frank J. Starzel, Ohio chief of bureau of the Associated Press.

Starzel described forms of censorship now in effect in various foreign countries—the "copy" censorship employed in Great Britain and the "responsibility" censorship system used in Germany and other totalitarian states.

"Censorship in any form is onerous to American newspapermen," Starzel asserted, "but the fact remains that no censor in any country changes the meaning of any story written by an American correspondent. He may refuse to permit it to go through, but the censors do not change the facts in any story that does get through."

Copy censorship, he explained, meant that censors read the copy of all correspondents and made eliminations where they seemed to the censor to be necessary. Responsibility censorship, Starzel went on, permitted a correspondent to send out whatever news he can obtain, but he must assume entire responsibility for it—with the penalty expulsion from the country.

"And there is no more useless foreign correspondent," Starzel said, "than one who has no entree to a country."

On the whole Starzel said, American newspaper readers have a wider knowledge of the progress of the war and the political and diplomatic moves behind the front than any resident of any European country, belligerent or neutral.

Still another form of censorship, Starzel went on, consisted of control of communication, such as telephone and cable routes.

He recounted how Lloyd Lerhbas, Associated Press correspondent in Bucharest, put in 20 telephone calls for other Associated Press bureaus in Europe trying to send out the story of the assassination of the Rumanian prime minister, allegedly killed by Iron Guards. Of the 20 calls, one put in to the Associated Press bureau in Copenhagen, got through and the story was relayed to America, resulting in a "beat" for the Associated Press of 12 hours.

Guests at the meeting were the editors-in-chief of the three school papers in Mansfield, Ruth Blumenschein of the John Simpson Times, William Sweet of the Appleseed Press, and Robert Henry of the Hyphonerian. Senior high publication.

Starzel was introduced by R. D. Lindsay, managing editor of The News-Journal.

RUSSELL HITS TEACHING BAN

NEW YORK — (INS) — Bertrand Russell, through counsel, today filed a motion to intervene in the taxpayer's suit which resulted in barring him as professor of philosophy at City college.

The British philosopher, whose appointment was opposed on moral grounds, offered five defenses to the taxpayer's action instituted by Mrs. Jean Kay.

The motion charges that the court in barring the appointment violates the constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech. Hearing on the motion was set for Monday by Justice John E. McGeehan who issued the ban.

SENATE RIVALS MAKE PLEA FOR PARTY BACKING

Burton and White Meet Today on Same Platform for First Time.

COLUMBUS - (INS) — Congressman Dudley A. White, Norwalk, and Mayor Harold H. Burton, Cleveland, appeared on the same platform today for the first time as they sought votes among Ohio Republicans in their race for the GOP nomination for U. S. senator.

Both carefully avoided mentioning each other or the third candidate in the contest, C. E. Wharton, of Kenton, who also spoke at a GOP rally in Columbus.

Burton included in his talk an appeal for support for U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft in his drive for the party's presidential nomination. White devoted his talk to the "sound priciples of the Republican recovery program."

"The issues now are issues of national policies," Burton declared. "They include the preservation of peace, the practice of economy, the attainment of industrial and agricultural recovery and, pending recovery, caring for the needs of those in distress without fault of their own."

The Cleveland mayor described Taft as a person of "unusual ability, unquestionable integrity, a vigorous mind and body, and supported by great courage." He urged that Republicans back him with such determination he would become the next president.

"I stand for no compromise on the sound principles of the Republican recovery program," White stated. "I am fed up with the LaGuardias and LaFollettes who seek the cover of the Republican banner to ride into positions of trust, and then toss party principles overboard."

PERSONAL TAX RECEIPTS FALL

But County Officials Believe Mail Payments Will Boost Figure to Normal.

Richland county's personal tax collection at the end of the non-penalty period yesterday totaled only half of the receipts for the first-half period last year, but county officials depended on late mail collections today to boost the total nearer the normal figure.

Receipts to last night amounted it to only $51,943 as compared with $104,000 at the same time last year.

Auditor Norman L. Wolfe, said, however, that a number of Shelby payments and several of the larger ones received by mail had not been turned over to Treasurer John E. Kolb.

"When everything is in we expect collections to be about normal," Wolfe said.

Meanwhile, real estate taxes continued to pour in with yesterday's receipts amounting to $11,605 and the total to date to $446,294. Real estate taxes will be received until April 10 without penalty.

OUT OF O. S. R. 24 HOURS, HE'S JAILED AGAIN ON HIS BIRTHDAY

Less than 24 hours after he was released from the Ohio State Reformatory, Louis Brown, 21, was back behind the bars.

Brown was released Monday after serving a 30-month sentence for carrying concealed weapons. He was arrested yesterday in Canton after County Detective Harry W. Grossglaus saw him break a window in a downtown music store.

His release was a birthday present but it turned out to be an April Fool joke on the youth who entered the State Reformatory at 16 when he was declared a juvenile delinquent.

Brown entered the institution May 6, 1935, from Stark county, on a charge of breaking and entering. His sentence was from one year to his majority.

July 1, 1937, he was paroled, but he retained his freedom only 11 weeks and then he was returned to the institution as a parole violator. The old Ohio Board of Paroles reviewed his case and decided that he should remain in prison for the maximum of his original sentence, which would be until he was 21 years old

Monday — April Fool's Day — Brown was 21 and his sentence expired. He was released in the afternoon and went immediately to Canton from which place he had been sentenced. Yesterday afternoon the county officer saw Brown break a window in a music store in the business section. He was back behind the bars in the Canton jail less than 24 hours after he left the Reformatory.

STATE YIELDS IN ROAD SCRAP

Changes Detour for Route 30-N Following County Protests for Highway Damage.

The state highway department took steps today to re-route its detour traffic on route 30-N after County Engineer Howard C. Sword protested that the traffic was ruining a short section of county road west of the city and that the state is using the road without permission.

Murray D. Shaffer, Ashland division state highway engineer, said route 30-N traffic probably would be shifted to route 30-S, then to route 61 near Galion and back to the northern route at Crestline.

"That arrangement would virtually isolate business places along route 30-N between Mansfield and Crestline, but there's no other alternative if we keep the traffic on state routes," Shaffer said.

Sword yesterday served notice on state highway officials that he would erect blockades to keep state traffic off a mile and a quarter section of the Shelby-Ontario road west of the city limits unless the detour route was changed. He said the heavy traffic was breaking up the county road.

Shaffer said today that if the county road was being used without permission, it was because of a "misunderstanding."

He added that a representative of the Ashland division of the highway department had discussed the detour with Mansfield officials and understood that it would be all right to use the county road.

The city refused to permit the establishment of a detour route over Ausdale avenue because of danger to Senior high school pupils.

The route 30-N detour was set up about two months ago when work was started by WPA on water lines along West Fourth street. The short section of the county road used as a detour route connects route 30-N with route 30-S.

ROOSEVELT AND DEWEY PICKED IN WISCONSIN

Garner Has Chance to Win 1 Delegate-at-Large on Final Vote Count.

Partial returns revealed a sharp upswing in Republican sentiment, with the probability that the Democratic total would fall short of the 1936 primary figure. Unopposed four years ago, Mr. Roosevelt polled 401,000, the Republicans about 190,000. Available reports showed the Republicans polled an average of about three more votes in each precinct yesterday than the Democrats.

The Progressive vote, sought by all sides, apparently was divided among Roosevelt candidates and both Republican factions.

GARNER DEFEATED

NEW YORK — (AP) — President Roosevelt seems assured of the 94 convention votes of his home state, New York, if he wants a third term.

The presidential campaign management of Vice President Garner struck at the Roosevelt third-term movement yesterday in New York's primary election, and failed.

In the only four congressional districts where the regular organization designees for delegates to the convention were opposed, Garner men were beaten overwhelmingly.

While not formally committed—both the Democratic and Republican delegations were chosen uninstructed—the successful candidates of Tammany and the allied Democratic organizations are substantially certain to support the president if he enters the fight.

Thomas E. Dewey, aspirant for the Republican presidential nomination, who is expected to have the bulk of New York's 92 delegates of that party—with Frank Gannett, the Rochester publisher, taking the remainder—won by a margin of around 6 to 1 in the only contest specifically directed against him. This was in the 16th district were available only in the metropolitan centers.

"The plan has developed an appreciation of good music in lay audiences, as well as making it possible for trained musicians everywhere to hear the best talent of their times." More than 600 cities and towns have the Civic Music plan, which finances the programs with no deficits for patrons to pay.

Because the quality of artists for a city is dependent upon the number of memberships, she urged music lovers of Mansfield and surrounding territory to renew their memberships early this week. During the past season 1,050 persons joined the organization, and the goal this year is to secure enough to completely fill the auditorium.

The drive will close at 9 p. m. Saturday and no memberships will be accepted after that hour. A program committee will decide on the artists for next season immediately after the drive closes.

Among the speakers who were introduced and spoke briefly on the membership campaign and what the Civic Music plan means to Mansfield were Mayor W. J. Locke, W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools, John Routzon, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce; John W. Graham, general manager of The News-Journal; C. H. Henkel, president of the Community Fund, Mrs. Paul Cropper, general chairman of the membership campaign; and Clyde Smaltz.

A number of other persons were introduced.

Headquarters for the campaign workers are in the office of the Ohio Fuel Gas company. The telephone number is Canal 3749.

The dinner last night was arranged by Mrs. W. E. Wygant and her committee. Spring colors were used in table decorations, flowers and candles.

Planning a Garden?

Plow Clay Soil In Fall, And Sandy Earth In Spring

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
(AP Feature Service Writer)

PLANTS, like animals grow only as fast and as much as their supply of nutrition permits.

In addition to food, plants need sun and warmth in the spring, but not too much heat in midsummer.

THIRD IN A SERIES

And they need the proper amount of water.

The heavy clay soils of northern states make the best gardens when they are turned in the fall. They should be plowed to a depth of eight inches, but 12 is even better. The land should be left rough and the clods exposed to the mellowing action of frost and freezing.

Western lands also should be fall plowed to catch snow and rain, thus storing moisture for dry summer weather.

Sandy soils of the south are best, as a rule, when plowed just before planting time.

Soils should not be worked when they're wet. Squeeze a handful of soil; if it gums into a ball or doesn't crumble readily under slight pressure it is too wet to work.

Just before planting seeds, work the soil with a rake or hoe until it is pulverized. Seeds grow more readily in a fine, well prepared soil than in a lumpy or coarse one.

Most soils need organic food. Barnlot manure or peat moss is good for the average garden, most experts agree. Soil should get a heavy application in fall or early spring and a lighter application after planting.

Special commercial fertilizers are good for many garden crops. For general use they should be four per cent nitrogen; 12 per cent phosphoric acid and four per cent potash. Leafy crops such as spinach, cabbage and kale need more nitrogen; root crops more potash.

Tomorrow: Deciding what seeds to buy.

How a Perfect Garden Should Be Situated

This is the lie for a "perfect" garden site.

The south slope of a gentle hill, so the ground gets more of the early spring sunshine.

A sandy, loam soil with plenty of plant food.

A site that is well drained and receives direct sun rays for the longest period each day.

ring operated in Kansas City. Pendergast himself accepted nearly $500,000 for his influence in settling a $9,500,000 fire insurance rate case.

Then came Tuesday's election and the women.

They rallied behind the plea "Wanted: 75,000 women with pioneer courage * * * Let us keep faith with those who blazed the trail."

They were given much of the credit for the fusion victory. Some 7,500 of them worked election day, getting out the vote, caring for babies while mothers went to the polls and handing out campaign literature.

The witness appeared before the committee as president of the Young Communist league of Massachusetts.

O'Dea did not hesitate a moment when J. B. Matthews, committee investigator, asked him for the name of the league secretary at Harvard.

"I refuse to answer because it would subject that person to economic pressure," he declared.

CONGESTION ON ROADS STUDIED

Highway Engineers Hold Key to Safety, Expert Tells Newsmen.

COLUMBUS, O., April 3— (AP) — Highway engineers have three-fourths of the responsibility for eliminating automobile transportation hazards, in the opinion of Maxwell Halsey, Yale university traffic research expert

"Accidents are not the real problem, but merely an index of inefficiency," Halsey told 50 newsmen attending a seminar of safety yesterday.

Halsey declared it was up to the traffic engineers to eliminate highway congestion by the "re-orientation of all future construction in terms of the functional elements which control the roadway."

Terming the intersection "the bottleneck of traffic inefficiencies," Halsey commented:

"The form of the intersection must be radically changed if improvements are to be made."

Burton W. Marsh, director of the American Automobile association's safety and traffic engineering department, advocated greater protection for pedestrians.

'Intensified city and state programs of pedestrian protection during the next three years will be the means of saving 6,600 lives," Marsh said.

The three-day seminar closes today.

Easy to See How Much Vendol Helped This Mansfield Man

Filling Station Proprietor says friends are amazed at great changes since he gave favorite medicine thorough trial.

MR. T. I. "TEDDY" COLEMAN

"There is no doubt as to how much Vendol benefitted me because my friends often noticed it and remark on my improved looks," said Mr. T. I. "Teddy" Coleman who owns the popular Cities Service filling station and resides at 1062 Park Ave., Mansfield, in a conversation recently with the Vendol Man who is daily at Central Drug Store introducing and explaining all about this great compound of Nature's Roots and Herbs with Mild Alkalines.

"When I began taking Vendol a few weeks ago I had been constipated for years, and here recently this condition has been bad and caused such sharp pains to appear in my back, arms, legs, and shoulders that seemed every move I made sent pains shooting all over my body.

"In addition to these troubles the constipation made me feel nervous and quivery sometimes and my sleep was so restless that many mornings I'd awaken feeling all "washed out." This condition kept my stomach all upset and after many meals I'd feel full and bloated with gas, sourness, and acid risings.

"Hearing so much about Vendol and the good results many people here in our home town were getting from it, I decided to give it a trial so got some along with the little Vendol laxative tablets.

"It didn't keep me waiting long to see results. Very soon it had my bowels moving thoroughly yet nice and smoothly, and with this satisfying action I soon felt better than for a long time.

"Now, I enjoy grand relief from the pains in the muscles of my arms, shoulders, legs, and across my back. This relief from constipation also brought quiet to my nerves and I enjoy my sleep like I did when I was a youngster. I enjoy my meals too, with no more gas, bloating, or sour stomach.

"I really feel like a different person and give all credit for my relief to Vendol, and I advise everyone in the same condition I was in, to start Vendol and see for themselves what it will do."

You are invited to talk freely with the Vendol Man at Central Drug Stotre, Corner Main & 4th Streets, without obligation, but give Vendol a chance to help you as it has so many all around here. Get Vendol today from most any druggist.

Chamberlain says he pins his hopes on "the rightness of Britain's cause and the resolution of her people"—but little Finland could tell him that this isn't enough.

Out in Lincoln, Ill., a car purchaser made the down payment with 11,500 pennies which he had saved in 18 months—never having thought to exchange them for nickels that would fit into a slot machine.

Damage From Heavy Truck Traffic

CITY AND COUNTY objection to detouring heavy truck traffic over streets and roads not designed to carry such heavy loads is no more than one phase in the big problem of what is to eventually be done about the growing usurpation of thoroughfares by an increasing number of heavy freight trucks not anticipated in what has been customary street and road paving.

While in this instance special attention is being directed to the damage being done on the Ontario-Shelby road between 30 North and 30 South, and to the Ausdale avenue detour inside the city, the fact is that a number of residence streets in Mansfield have been required, in recent years, to carry a burden of heavy trucks for which the paving foundation and surface were not intended and which made re-paving necessary long before it would have been required had traffic been confined to passenger cars and light trucks instead of permitting trucks of freight-car proportions to use these streets.

Whether state and federal highways, and streets on which these highways pass through cities, are even now being paved in a way that will long withstand the hammering of continuous heavy truck traffic is problematical. It is quite well assured, however, that this form of destructive traffic is not meeting its fair share of construction and upkeep costs and that it is motorists and other general taxpayers who are called upon to bear this burden, in addition to the danger and inconvenience involved in having highways and streets "hogged" by long distance hauling of freight by trucks.

This diversion of freight shipments from railroads to trucks came on so insidiously, as a part of the early motorizing era, that the magnitude of the menace was not immediately recognized by officials or the public.

What can, and will, finally be done about it is not yet entirely clear, as local, state and federal co-operation will be needed in solving the intricate transportation problems involved. Meanwhile such state and local action as is possible should be taken to reduce this damage and menace to a minimum.

Uncertainty Retards Business

DURING the course of a recent address Congressman Emanuel Celler made this observation on present fiscal problems: "Business may be able to adjust itself to the present staggering tax burden, but it cannot adjust itself to the suspense, uncertainty and confusion caused by constantly changing tax laws. Without confidence, dollars will not go to work and employment can be created only by forced and artificial means."

If congress really wishes orderly and sustained economic recovery, the initial step must be to prepare a rational and permanent policy for, first, gradually reducing the debt, and, second, looking to easement of the tax load at the earliest possible future time. It should immediately repeal those "nuisance" taxes which actually reduce revenue by stunting the growth of industry and business.

Business is eager to adjust itself to any necessary, equitable tax policy—but it cannot chart a safe course today any more than could a ship if known navigation marks were being constantly and carelessly changed.

Warplanes for the Allies

THE practical satisfaction of building fleets of warplanes for the Allies, for the double purpose of profit and preparedness, is great. The moral satisfaction is less, as it is not pleasant to know that this country is contributing to the death of many people and the destruction of ships and cities.

The saving fact is that, on thinking the problem through, we mostly conclude that the belligerent Old World would probably be harmed more if we didn't do this. The quicker the war is finished, the better it will be all around.

Belated Exoneration of Eve

THE forbidden fruit that was eaten in the Garden of Eden is still making trouble. But the blame seems to have at last been placed where it probably belongs. There will be some dispute about that unfortunate incident, but a current version commands attention.

As Bible readers are aware, Adam did not play a heroic role in the episode. When he and his wife were caught eating the forbidden fruit, he cravenly protested that the wife was the guilty party, and he had eaten it merely because she persuaded him—an excuse heard many a time since.

Now church authority exonerates Eve. As Rev. Francis J. Connell of New York explained to the convention of the National Catholic Educational Association in Kansas City last week, Adam himself is held responsible, and Eve is exonerated in the new catechism for parochial schools.

To many, the theological implications of this ancient story are obscure. But viewing the matter in a merely worldly way, it is evident that Adam would have been a more heroic figure through the ages if he had assumed responsibility in the first place.

Books for the Young

THE reading taste of young people has improved more than that of adults since the Nineties, according to a faculty member of the University of California extension division. Boys and girls today wouldn't read the sentimental, "goody-goody" books of their predecessors. Even the youngest readers like best the books with good illustrations, dealing truthfully with farm life, or children of other lands, or dogs and cats like their own pets.

The young moderns like picture books of adventure, travel and invention, but they want them to be honest.

This is all very interesting, if true, and causes a person to wonder how it came about if the grown-ups haven't progressed in the same way. Who taught the youngsters what to demand in literature, or persuaded the authors of "juveniles" to improve their product?

According to Robert Quillen, "alimony is what a man pays for depreciation when he trades in an old model."

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—I've just finished a 23-cent meal on the United States army—and am I stuffed!

First: A note to any man anywhere who's eligible—if you're hungry, join the army.

Second: A note to General George C. Marshall, chief of staff—If you're going to feed 'em like that, you'll have to keep 'em working. Sedentary gents like your correspondent can't eat like that and stay awake. And how would you look with an army that had to have a 2-hour siesta after every meal?

Third: Note to readers—no matter how it sounds, this is no puff for the army. Me, I'm a pacifist. Give me a shooting gallery, with a row of slow-moving ducks and I can't miss. But let some top-sarge step up and say: "Keep your shots down, soldier! Imagine that's an enemy." And I can't even hit the gallery.

I just didn't want you to get me wrong.

What I was talking about was the army's new field rations (RAY-shuns, if you're a Websterite; RASH-uns, if you're talking to any one from a buck private to a chief of staff).

Well, these rations are brand new. They used to call them "emergency" rations, because they come in cans and can be issued, served, and eaten without a field kitchen. They are for men in the field or in the trenches when transportation lines are temporarily disconnected.

Napoleon's Idea.

CAPTAIN J. J. POWERS, who knows about everything from peeling spuds on K. P. duty to serving a banquet for the general staff, told me all about them. It's fascinating. Here it is:

When Napoleon was campaigning, he offered 15,000 francs to any person who would show him how to preserve food so it would last for weeks for men on the march. A fellow showed him, but crudely—in breakable bottles.

During the Civil war, soldiers were given a handful of green coffee beans. They used to roast them, grind them between rocks (if they could find any rocks) and brew their own java in whatever they had handy. In the Spanish-American war, there was a big row over poisoned food, coming out of those new-fangled tin cans.

The World war caught all armies napping, and, though canned rations were used—well, ask any of the boys who got into the trenches.

Dinner Is Breakfast.

THE army's new field rations are something and this is first-hand information, because I've eaten. For breakfast, you get two cans, opening with a key. One will contain 15 ounces of half meat and half beans. The meat is half pork and half beef. The other can contains nine crackers (six ounces), made with whole wheat, white flour and milk; three lumps of sugar and enough soluble coffee to make a pint-and-a-half of good strong java.

For lunch, you get two 15-ounce cans of beef stew. Dinner is breakfast all over again. The next day the order is reversed. If this sounds like too much of the same thing, remember that it's planned only for a 2-day emergency—and for a hungry doughboy, we call that a very slight emergency. One day's rations has from 3,700 to 3,900 calories and if you think that's short, ask your doctor about your own diet.

The new rations will get their first practical tryout this spring when the army holds the greatest peace-time maneuvers ever seen in the United States—down in Dixie. For two days, the army will live on this modern version of corn-willy and slum. The reports on it probably will fill a couple of volumes, but don't let that worry you.

Me? I'm a pacifist. But if the cost of eating doesn't start down pretty soon, look for the May dateline on this column to read: "At the Front, Somewhere in Dixie."

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev.—This is Our Town, and I wish Frank Craven were here to tell you about it. . . . Here in Our Town, we have about 500 people, but sometimes the number goes up to 700 or 800, depending upon the visitors we get, and the weddings that are celebrated. We have a lot of nice people, and maybe there are some who aren't so nice, but they're all good people when you get to know them, and I'm going to tell you a little something about them.

See that fellow in front of the hotel over there? . . . That's Axel. . . . Axel sleeps in a bullion vault, a steel safe, you might say, every night. . . . One time he ran a nail through his foot, and they wanted him to see the doctor. . . . I guess nearly everybody in Our Town told him he'd better go see the doctor, to have it treated right so he wouldn't have lock-jaw. But Axel wouldn't do it. . . . Instead, he got himself two pints of whisky. One pint he drank, and the other he poured into his shoe. Now he's well as anybody.

THAT woman passing Axel now is Slot Machine Ida. . . . She's about 60, and every nickel she gets she plays the slot machines. That's how she comes by her name. . . . Everybody in Virginia City knows Ida. . . . One night the miners broke a $10 bill and had it all put into nickels and gave them to Ida so she could play the slot machine. Ida says it was the best time she ever had.

In Our Town, the main street is C street, and we have twelve bars on that one street. Good ones, too. C street is only two streets from A street. You see, in Our Town, the streets are alphabetical, and they run from A to G. In the old days the cream of the elite used to live on A street. On B street, we had the courthouse and the jail, and some of the nice people lived there, too. C street, as I said, is the business district in Our Town; E street used to be where the Chinamen lived. . . . The Mexicans lived on F street, and then the Indians lived on G street. That isn't exactly the way it is now, but it used to be that way in the old days, and it stayed that way until after we had the first fire, back in the 70's.

OUR Fire Department is right down there. We have a man who stays there all the time, and he's paid by the county. When a building catches fire in Our Town, the Fire Department never actually tries to save it—they concentrate on the nearby buildings to keep them from burning. In Our Town, any building that catches fire is pretty sure to be a goner.

Then there's Vince Nevin, one of the nicest fellows you ever met. Vince owns the only newspaper in Our Town, the Virginia City News, and it has eight pages. We're mighty proud of that paper because the first and back pages are set by hand, something you don't see very often any more. The other six pages come in every Thursday from Salt Lake City, all printed up. That's the newsoffice there, where Vince is going in. If you turn around and look this way, down there in the valley, you can see the old cemetery. We have four cemeteries in Our Town, but that's the oldest and the most interesting.

Well, I guess I'd better get on down the street. There's Father Harrigan, our priest, who comes up once a week from Reno. And there's Joe Hart, manager of the Virginia City Theater. That siren you hear means it's twelve o'clock. It's right across the street from the Wonder Lode bar. Goes off every day just like that, and when it does everybody in Virginia City knows it's [illegible] time to eat.

Listen, World!

Never Underestimate a Woodtick.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THE WESTERN woodtick is a mild, inoffensive looking outfit. It lies like a fleck of gray shadow on the branches of the chaparral. Even as a bug it seems a trivial affair. And the tenderfoot striding by—if he chances to observe it—will look with contempt on this harmless insect. He has a proper respect for mountain lions, timber wolves and rattlesnakes. But the feeble little woodtick he passes with a patronizing smile.

But that, my darlings, is where the tenderfoot proves he's a sucker. For presently, as he strides his haughty way, the tenderfoot feels a vague irritation on his neck. It is only a little irritation. It is not worth noticing. He can manage little irritations like that. Says he.

But can he?

No, he cannot. As he presently discovers.

For in no time flat the little irritation has changed to a big pain, if not a permanent peril. And the tenderfoot discovers that the feeble little woodtick is the reason for it all. For that fleck of pale gray shadow, which he so contemptuously disregarded, has taken advantage of that contempt to land itself upon him. And chisel in, under the cover of his contemptuous indifference or amiable condescension. And having chiseled, the "feeble" little woodtick then proceeds to do its job. And how!

For when it comes to doing a job a woodtick can make a sawed-off shotgun look like an amateur. One bite and it has your whole circulatory system going west. And before you realize, the "harmless little woodtick" has swollen to the size of the Woolworth Building and is sitting tight on all your red corpuscles.

THIS is not a natural history column. It is designed for those countless suckers with the bulging brow and the arrogant disposition who think they can take some feeble little creature into their lives and play God to it and get by without being nicked.

Condescending males who marry nitwit females and call them Baby—

Big-hearted gals who accumulate trick gadgets and call them Sweetie—

Families who think it will be so lovely to take in "poor dear foolish Jim" who's never been able to make good at anything . . . and wake up to find themselves bankrupt tomorrow morning with poor dear Jim holding all the first mortgages and a little blackmail on the side.

In short, this is an article for suckers. Conceited suckers who think they can acquire harmless little leeches and not get their veins tapped. Do most of you get me the first time?

Yes, dearies, you do. Our scars are the same. We've both picked 'em off our necks and will probably do so again.

Key to Safety.

Divided highways save lives.

That is a proven fact, and one that must be considered in any practical program to reduce motor accidents.

An experiment recently made in New Jersey in this connection is of interest.

An undivided four-lane highway was separated into two double lanes by jacking the slabs apart at the center and inserting a median strip with curbing.

The results were prompt and gratifying. Fatal accidents on the ten-mile stretch of road declined 83.3 per cent. Traffic accidents of all kinds dropped over 40 per cent, while in the same period the state-wide figures were showing a 6.7 per cent increase.

The New Jersey experiment demonstrates that the principle of physical separation of opposing traffic lanes can be applied to existing wide, undivided roads, as well as to newly constructed ones. —Philadelphia Inquirer.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

Calling Her "Bossy."

Strange, indeed, are the ways of language. Our word cow comes to us from the Old English cou, which is of Anglo-Saxon derivation—cu—its nearest relatives the Danish and Swedish "ko"!

It is only when the farmer used her nickname, saying "Home, Bossy!" that the good cow comes into her classical heritage! For "Bossy!" is no mere arbitrary invention. It is what the herdsman on the grassy slopes of ancient Greece called his cows, the Greek for "cow" as accurately as we can give it here, being Bous!

Wood-Cutting Contest

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

LATE one afternoon, while walking, I came down a slope through an old orchard. High along the timber line, the apple trunks were far gone, from age and disease, and only hollow stumps remained. I could see that once this orchard had been wisely planned and planted. The rows were straight and the hillside site provided that late spring frosts would not kill the early bloom, and marginal land would yield a fine return. It is overgrown with brambles now, and as I descended I heard, to one side, the light strokes of an ax and then a child's high-pitched voice talking rapidly, as though to another child.

I followed the sound. The ax rang fast and furiously. A boy was choping away at a fallen tree, and talking in great excitement. I looked in vain for another boy. There was only one, and he was so absorbed in his task that he did not see me. I quietly approached and stood there trying to get the drift.

The lad's cap and coat lay on the newly cut stump. His dark eyes flashed and his face was tense as I heard him proclaim himself the winner of the race over opponents that I did not see. He called two other boys by name, and I knew that to him they seemed as real as living figures. I was sorry I had stood so near, but I could not retrace my steps without embarrassment. I was curious about the drama in which this ten-year-old was so involved.

He gave a sudden start when he saw me, and seemed immediately self conscious.

"I heard somebody chopping down here, like a man," said I, nonchalantly. "Did you cut that big pile of wood all by yourself?" (It was a good-sized heap of clean-cut sticks.)

"Y-yes sir, I did. I been here since school was out. I played two other boys were up here too, and we were racing to see who'd cut the most."

"And who won?" I asked.

"I did," he said with an answering twinkle in his eye. "I guess you heard me talkin' to 'em; my dad says a person is worth more when he can work alone—he didn't know I can bring my friends along, just the ones I like best, too. I get more done when I imagine they're here than if they really were," he added. "Mom always says, "One boy is a whole boy, two boys is half a boy and three boys is no boy at all. I guess she know- I'm going to bring her up to see the wood I've cut."

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Columnists Dorothy Thompson and Arthur Krock don't know it, but they had one high-placed member of the administration on their side in the controversy over unemployment figures.

The unexpected ally was Secretary Frances Perkins.

When the two columnists fired their startling barrage that the employable jobless army numbered only two and not ten million, New Deal strategists, fearful of the effect the charge might have on their drive to increase the WPA budget, scurried around to drum up impressive denials. One authority they approached for such a counterblast was Miss Perkins.

But to their astonishment she balked. At first they were mystified by her attitude but, finally, on an inside tip they found the explanation in her annual report last year. In this document is a paragraph that in effect completely corroborates the Thompson-Krock claim.

Note—While Miss Perkins' report escaped general notice, the alert U. S. Chamber of Commerce spotted it. The Chamber called its members' attention to the report in a monthly bulletin.

Liberal Gospel.

THE recent Frank report is a lot more liberal than the views held by certain powerful eastern GOP leaders, who will have a great deal to say behind the scenes at the Philadelphia convention. That the candidates nevertheless are echoing the doctrines enunciated by the report indicates clearly that they deem this liberism necessary to win public favor.

It also is a good tip-off that when the GOP platform emerges it will read very much like the Frank report. In his preface, Dr. Frank stated that it was not the intention of his committee to write a platform. But party insiders will give you odds that that is just what he did.

Note—In the hot Dewey-Vandenberg primary now in progress in Nebraska, Dewey boosters are capitalizing on Vandenberg's vote against the $212,000,000 parity payments fund by declaring that Dewey favors such farm benefits. The young New Yorker has never said this flatly himself, but his Nebraska supporters are claiming it for him.

White House Flowers.

FOR nearly a month yellow crocuses have been blossoming near the fountain in the east garden of the White House. For a long time they bloomed alone, although the garden, tucked into an ell on the warm side of the White House, is more advanced than others on the grounds.

But now the pansies too are out, and the buds are swelling in the jonquils and tulips. It has been a hard winter, and the pansies would not be blooming but for a top dressing of manure which gardener Reeves gave them in the fall.

Next on the schedule to bloom will be the hardy perennials—iris, delphiniums, forget-me-nots, and old-fashioned wall flowers.

The west garden, which the president sees from his office, is primarily a rose garden, but there is a planting of tulips for early blooming.

The other two principal gardens of the White House surround the two fountains, one on the north side, facing Pennsylvania avenue, and the other on the south side, looking toward the Washington monument. By the time the fountains are ready for the goldfish, the tulips will be in full bloom. When the gardeners are sure there will be no more relapses into winter, they will populate the ponds with about 300 goldfish.

The recent cold spell was a blessing in disguise for the White House lawn. It cut almost in half the crowd of Easter egg-rollers, and spared the lawn its annual Easter Monday trampling.

Scuttled "Plow."

THE famous "Plow That Broke the Plains" is headed for the junk heap.

It was put on the skids when the house appropriations committee scuttled the $106,000 budget of the U. S. Film Service on a parliamentary technicality. The only hope for the agency is the senate, which can restore the fund.

The U. S. Film Service is one of the least expensive and most widely acclaimed educational activities of the government. Under the direction of brilliant young Pare Lorentz, it has produced three world-famous movies, of which "The Plow," depicting the egricultural history of the western plains, was the first. Produced in 1936, it created an artistic sensation. Since then it has been seen by more than 25,000,000 people.

Lorentz' second picture, "The River," a dramatic story of the Mississippi river, was an even greater hit. Critics called it the best documentary picture ever produced, and at the 1938 International Exposition of Cinematographic Art in Venice it won first prize among 71 competing entries.

Lorentz' third picture, recently released, "The Fight For Life," is a film about childbirth and maternal welfare based on the best-seller by Dr. Paul de Kruif. De-Kruif turned down a fat Hollywood offer for the movie rights in order to give them gratis to the government. After the picture's premiere in Manhattan, the New York Times declared, "We wish there were some form of Pulitzer award for the kind of cinema journalism Mr. Lorentz has been doing."

Note—Lorentz, who gets $10,000 a year, has turned down Hollywood offers as high as $50,000 for one picture. Representative Malcolm Tarver, economy-minded Georgian who raised the technicality against the Film Service appropriation, is not so economy-minded in his own affairs. He has a son, Malcolm, jr., on the congressional payroll as his secretary at $3,300 a year.

Political Chaff.

LOUISIANA insiders predict that after the April 16 referendum on the Huey Long sales tax, which they say is certain to be repealed, Mayor Maestri of New Orleans, the last of the Long moguls still in office, will resign. . . . Politicos are wondering if there is any connection between the editorial in the current "Fortune" boosting Wendell Willkie, No. 1 utility foe of the New Deal, for president and the fact that Russell Davenport, managing editor of the ritzy magazine, has taken a three months leave of absence to master-mind Willkie's campaign . . . New Dealers are urging John P. Devaney, former chief justice of the Minnesota supreme court, to become the Democratic candidate against Senator Henrik Shipstead, who hasn't decided yet whether to run for re-election under his Farmer-Labor label, or as an Independent or as a Republican. Last year, after serving 16 years in the senate as a Farmer-Laborite, Shipstead asked for committee assignments as a Republican, and since then has generally voted with them on major issues.

CHAPTER VI

Elaine remembered that she hadn't and the realization that this would prove a difficult problem to solve brought a frown to her face. From what she had heard it was difficult to find a good room in New York, a room which was not only comfortable, but one which was priced at a sum she could afford to pay.

She looked questioningly at Clara but her friend simply shook her head, implying she couldn't offer any suggestions. It was Dr. Stuart who offered a solution to the problem.

"My sister has an apartment in Greenwich Village," he told them. "About three weeks ago her roommate moved to Chicago. If you think you would like to share the apartment with her I'm sure I could arrange it."

Elaine was not sure that this was what she wanted. After all, she didn't know the young interne very well and although she liked him she doubted the wisdom of accepting his suggestion too quickly. It was Clara who made the decision, Clara was so much keener than she at judging people.

"Of course she'd like to room with your sister," she told the doctor. Her eyes twinkled. "It takes Elaine hours to make up her mind."

And thus it was arranged, and when the two left the room 15 minutes later Elaine was feeling infinitely better. All her problems had been solved. When she was ready to leave for New York Clara would give her two letters of introduction, one to her father, and the other to Monticelli, the voice teacher. And Dr. Stuart had promised to write his sister at once so that she would be expecting her and have time to make any arrangements she considered necessary.

Yes, she had every reason to feel happy, but as the sun began to sink in the west sending dancing, reddish beams into her room Elaine felt sure she would never be really happy again. Clara and Dr. Stuart had indeed proven to be real friends. But what were friends when you had lost the man you loved?

Another thought came into her head and she dismissed it almost as quickly as it had come. She was—wondering if Dr. Stuart would have jilted her so callously. She decided that he would not. Somehow, he had the appearance of being a man who meant what he said—moon—or no moon.

Elaine had been quite positive that she would never laugh or enjoy herself again. She had felt quite certain that Eric's decision concerning their marriage had completely destroyed that part of her which enjoyed gayety and good times. She was a trifle confused, therefore, when, two weeks later, during a visit with Betty she found herself laughing as though she hadn't a care in the world.

Curious about this, she moved across the room and sat down on the edge of Betty's bed. Her eyes were quizzical as she surveyed her chum's pale, taut face and white-bandaged head. "Betty Jordon, you're still as crazy as ever!"

Betty scowled. "For the millionth time, I tell you the idea is not crazy. I simply want to go to the movies and I want you to ask the conscientious Dr. Stuart to forget he's a big, brave interne long enough to grant me permission."

Elaine laughed as a pout stole over Betty's face. "I suppose you're going to tell me they keep you in bed just to torture you."

"They're all beasts," Betty declared savagely. "And I'm not excluding your precious Dr. Stuart. Although I suppose I shouldn't say that since you've taken such a fancy to him."

"Fancy to him?" Elaine stood up and tried to look indignant but the pretense was a dismal failure. "I never heard of anything so ridiculous in my life. I like him, yes. After all, he's been very kind to me. But as for loving him—oh, you're just being silly again!"

"Will you deny that he's in love with you?" Betty queried, enjoying Elaine's discomfiture.

A scarlet flush crept into Elaine's cheeks and she heaved a forlorn sigh. She met Betty's merry eyes frankly. "I—I know he does. But goodness knows why. I've never given him any encouragement and since I found out how he does feel I've even gone out of my way to show him how silly it is."

"It isn't silly," Betty declared, eyes flashing. And then before Elaine could add another word she changed the subject. "Will you write me after you leave?"

"Of course," Elaine told her, glad they had gotten off the embarrassing subject.

Betty closed her eyes. "And if you ever need anything I want you to promise me you'll let me know. I know you don't have much money and I—well. . . ."

"Yes, I know," Elaine interrupted gently. She walked on tiptoe to the door. "You'd better go to sleep now. I'll come back later."

"I'm not sleepy. I just want to . . ." Betty's words trailed away and in a few seconds she was sound asleep.

Once back in her own room, Elaine again returned to the subject of Dr. Stuart. It was true he had fallen in love with her. At first she had only guessed that this was so, but his actions during the past two weeks had made her quite sure. She wondered just how she could make it clear to him that it was all rather silly. She could of course, tell him that it was, but remembering that he had not even once mentioned anything that could be constructed as a declaration of his love, she was forced to discard this idea. At that, she might never be confronted with the necessity of doing anything about it. In another two days she would be on her way to New York and she felt certain that once she had gone Dr. Stuart would soon forget she had ever existed. She hoped so, for his sake.

Perhaps the casual manner in which Eric discarded her had caused her to become too cynical about love. But whether it had or not her viewpoint concerning this subject had changed considerably. After reasoning the whole thing out very carefully she had decided she had gotten no more than she deserved. Her trouble had been that she was too innocent of the ways of men, and too, too eager for love. Had she not been so blinded by Eric's charm she would never have let her feeling for him run away with her reason, but that, of course, showed how really naive she had been. A more intelligent girl might have cared for a man as intensely as she had cared for Eric, but an intelligent girl would never have let him feel even for an instant that he was the most important man in the world.

Well, she had been a fool once, but never again. She was going to be as indifferent, yes, even as brutal, as Eric had been, but Dr. Stuart had been so kind to her that she did not want to hurt him. She hoped he would forget her before she did hurt him.

The next day she was discharged from the hospital, pronounced completely well. She and Clara immediately went on a shopping expedition to replenish her wardrobe and what with a hundred and one things to do before she left the sleepy Southern city she forgot to worry about Dr. Stuart's, or even her own feelings.

The night before she took the train for New York she packed her dresses and other things, which had been sent over from the school, and sent them out with the hotel porter so that they might be put on the evening train. This had been Clara's suggestion, who, wise traveller that she was, felt it was a nuisance to have to worry about luggage when you could just as easily have it shipped to wherever you wanted it.

It wasn't until she was in Betty's room the next morning bidding her good-bye that she learned that Dr. Stuart loved her and had no intention of forgetting about her. He had come into the room just as she was about to leave and one look into his shining eyes sent a quiver through her body. Trying to hide her confusion, she turned around to Betty.

DOLLY MADISON CLUB NAMES NEW OFFICERS

Mrs. Brook to Head Democratic Women's Group; Plans Made for Candidates Dinner, Silver Jubilee Party In May.

OFFICERS for the coming year were elected, and plans for a silver anniversary party were discussed last night at the regular meeting of the Dolly Madison club which was held with Mrs. George Davis, 82 Glenwood boulevard. The retiring officers, Mrs. Wilbur W. Lawrence, Mrs. George M. Bell, Mrs. Glenn Coffman and Mrs. L. D. Bower, were associate hostesses.

Mrs. Lawrence presided during the session, and Mrs. Clark Brook was elected president. She will be assisted by Mrs. Glenn Marriott, vice president, Mrs. Bower, secretary, and Mrs. Coffman, treasurer. The latter two women were re-elected.

The new president appointed her committees. They are Mrs. Marriott, program; Mrs. Cliff Mitchell, Mrs. Ray Hout, Mrs. George Davis and Mrs. Edward Q. Leap, membership; Mrs. Paul Mitchell, Mrs Howard Sword and Mrs. Norman Wolfe, finance; Mrs. John McNamara, flowers and cards; Mrs. Cecil Schill, visiting committee, and Mrs. Howard Wenning, publicity.

The silver jubilee celebration, which will be held next month with Mrs. George Bell in charge, will celebrate the 25th anniversary of the club and the birthday of Dolly Madison. Arrangements were also made to hold a covered-dish dinner for members and their families on April 30 with the Democratic candidates as guests.

Following the current events which were given by Mrs. George Davis, Atty. Leslie Wagner spoke on "Modern Penal Law." He said that the indeterminate sentence was one of the greatest steps made in the advancement of the penal laws during the past several years. This provides an incentive for convicts to reform, he pointed out.

Atty. Wagner emphasized that the F. B. I. information shows that there are three and one half million criminals at work in the United States, and that this number committed one and a half million crimes per year at an estimated cost of $14,000,000,000 annually. He estimated that one in 120 persons in Richland county would commit some crime during the coming year.

Following the program Mrs. Emma Young conducted a contest which Mrs. Brook won. Refreshments were served during the social hour.

Miss Marie Kalbfleisch, Miss Phyllis Brown, Mrs. C. Richard Martin, Miss Ann Menrath and Mrs. Donald Snyder will serve on the committee in charge of arrangements, and they will announce the place later.

The group is also planning to have a Mother's day breakfast at the hotel on May 12, with Mrs. Charles Wilkinson, Mrs. Alyce Vahar, Mrs. John Sprosty, Mrs. Floyd Thatcher and Mrs. Charles Ticknor as hostesses.

Bridge was the diversion of the social hour, and prizes were won by Mrs. Sprosty and Mrs. Wilkinson. Refreshments were served at a late hour. Last night's meeting was in charge of the Misses Ann Hagar and Isabel Geistmeyer.

Mrs. Wilson Has Program for April Federation Meet

Mrs. Lester Redding presided at the annual business meeting of the Mansfield Federation of Women which was held yesterday afternoon at the Women's Club. Following the business meeting during which routine reports were given by the standing committees, and a report of the Dental Clinic was given, Mrs. J. C. Wilson presented the program.

Mrs. Wilson reviewed "Life With Father" by Clarence Day as adapted by Howard Lindsey and Russell Crouse. The drama, which is currently playing to large crowds in New York, depicts the life of a family in the late Victorian period. Previously this season Mrs. H. S. Sanford and Mrs. V. H. Lodde have entertained with dramatic programs.

Refreshments were served later from an oval table decorated with a centerpiece of mixed spring flowers and roses. Mrs. Albert F. Remy presided at the coffee urn, and Mrs .B. L. Chase poured tea. The final federation program of the season will be a bridge-luncheon at the Club April 18.

Entertain With Party for Bride

Mrs. Robert Springer and her mother, Mrs. O. R. Eby, entertained with a post-nuptial shower for Mrs. Ben H. Rawls yesterday evening at the Springer home on Glessner avenue. The honoree was Miss Evelyn Rusk before her marriage at the United Presbyterian church last Friday evening.

Bridge was played at three tables, and prizes were won by Mrs. Edward Mattox, Mrs. Morris Marquis and Mrs. Jack Stoodt, who presented their awards to Mrs. Rawls.

In addition to the many bedroom shower gifts from the guests, Mrs. Rawls received a wedding present from the hostesses. Spring flowers decorated the home, and a buffet luncheon was served after the games. Several other parties are being planned for the recent bride in the near future.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 10¢ and 25¢. Stubbornly refuse anything else.
